

M'ADOO PUTS NEW RIVET IN THE LID

Every Member of the Force Watching Suspected Gambling or Pool-Rooms Must Make a Daily Report for Him.

DETAILED STATEMENT OF ALL ACTS REQUIRED

Commissioner of Police Will Himself Examine These Papers for Evidence of Violation of Department Rules.

Commissioner McAdoo issued a new general order to-day governing the action of inspectors, captains and plainclothes men assigned to the duty of breaking up gambling-houses and putting all suspected places out of business. Owing to the inactivity of many men employed in this service the commissioner has determined that all concerned shall present daily reports of their actions.

The order addressed to the precinct captains reads in part: "You will instruct every member of your command stationed in front of an alleged pool-room, gambling-house, disorderly house or other suspected place within your precinct, whether in uniform or plain clothes, to inform every person who attempts to enter such place of the character of the same and that it is liable to be raided at any moment by the police. Each officer so assigned will submit a written report to you at the expiration of his tour of duty at such place or places, such report to specify the number of persons who entered or came out of the same, the existing conditions, what evidence he has obtained against the place and what efforts he has taken to obtain evidence, where he stationed himself and what surveillance he exercised over the same."

The order demands that the report be complete and full, covering all possible phases of police and detective duty. According to the order, the plainclothes men must report to the next in command until the written statements are lodged with the captain of the precinct. From him it goes to the inspector and then to the borough inspector, lodging finally with Commissioner McAdoo. These reports must be made daily.

Commissioner McAdoo will himself examine the reports, and he will bring to trial every officer who he thinks is guilty of a violation of the police rules or orders. Twelve plainclothes have already been ordered for trial on account of inactivity in a Mercer street raid last week.

AHEARN DECIDES HE HAS ROOM ENOUGH

Borough President Withdraws Application for More Office Space and Expected Protest Isn't Heard.

Full of apprehension over the anticipated invasion of the Aldermanic chamber by a hundred representatives of the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, history clubs, clubs for the preservation of things scenic, historic and otherwise, three members of the Board of Aldermen's Committee on Markets and Public Buildings gathered timidly in the chamber this afternoon to hear why Borough President Ahearn should not be allowed to annex as much of the Governor's Room as he requires for additional office room.

Aldermen Twomey, Bridges and Davies were the only members of the committee who had the temerity to be present. The Aldermanic Chamber was closed to the public at the time, as it was believed that any other room would be too small. Ernest Hageman Hall was present for the Society for the Preservation of Historic Scenes and Places. There were also present three women, one of whom said she was from the City Historical Club. Alderman Twomey called the meeting to order and announced that Borough President Ahearn, having withdrawn his application, there was no further need of considering the matter. Then the hearing was declared adjourned.

FAST RIDERS DISCHARGED.

Bridle Path Patrols Said They Lost Control of Horses.

William S. Richardson, the architect, of No. 55 West Fifty-second street, and Albert L. Hoffman, of No. 38 East Sixty-ninth street, were in the Harlem Court today charged with violating the Park ordinance against fast riding on the bridge path.

For several hours, according to the testimony of Sgt. Corbett, these two men gave the mounted police all kinds of discomfort yesterday. Every time the coppers would rest easy on their horses Richardson and Hoffman, riding together, would tear up or down the path at a break-neck speed and force the police to trail after them. Finally toward the late part of the day when the traffic was thickest the riders lost control of their horses and made a wild dash along the East path from Ninety-fourth to One Hundredth street. This time Corbett stood in their way and he told both men to walk their horses behind him so that their names and addresses might be put on the police books.

In court to-day Richardson and Hoffman both swore that they had lost control of their animals. Magistrate Flannery believed them and entered a discharge.

BRAVE POLICEMAN SAVES CHILDREN

He Stops a Runaway Horse and Prevents the Frightened Animal from Dashing Into a Crowd in Brooklyn.

As the children of Public School No. 25, Sixth avenue and Eighth street, Brooklyn, were leaving the school-house to-day a wild horse drawing one of Borden's milk wagons dashed up Sixth avenue and made straight toward a crowd of children collected on the sidewalk. Patrolman Acritoli, of the Twenty-fourth Precinct, was standing on the corner, and he ran out to meet the runaway.

The first time Acritoli grabbed at the bridle he missed and nearly went under the horse. He steadied himself, however, and made another reach, with more success, clinging to the reins and bridle, he was dragged half a block before he brought the horse to a standstill.

In the mean time the children had scattered in all directions, screaming and shouting at the top of their lungs. The policeman was not hurt seriously, although while being dragged he was kicked by the horse. The damage to Borden's was largely a measure of shaken-up milk. The horse had run three blocks before its career was stopped. John Leidl, of No. 154 Vanderbilt avenue, was the driver, and he had left the horse standing while delivering some bottles of milk.

WOMAN PUZZLES THE LINGUISTS

Professor at New York University Tried to Talk with Her in Eight Languages, but Didn't Strike One She Spoke.

Policeman Whiler, of the Highbridge station, found an old woman, the grounds of the New York University, University Heights, to-day, and after trying to talk a language to her which she might understand gave up in despair. He tried English and German. He took the woman to the professor of languages at the University, who tried eight different tongues with as much success. To all the "do you speak so and so," the only answer was a muttering which couldn't be decoded. Then they took the woman to the Harlem branch of the Charity Commission, Arnold Krivulin, master of fourteen languages, tried each one in turn. The result was the same. The woman was then taken to the Charity Commission's office for a different treatment.

SHOOTS THROUGH MUFF AT WOMAN

Dressmaker with Fancied Grievance Fires Revolver at Former Employer, Mrs. Adelaide Jonas, in Her Place of Business.

GIRLS HOLD ASSAILANT UNTIL POLICE ARRIVE.

When Arraigned She Is Recognized as Woman Arrested Last Fall for Firing Shot at Lawyer—Held in $1,000 Bail.

Charged with felonious assault, Mrs. Eleanor Hanish, forty-five years old, a dressmaker, of No. 111 Avenue A, was held in $1,000 bail for trial to-day by Magistrate Crane in the Yorkville Court. Mrs. Hanish is charged with attempting to shoot Mrs. Adelaide Jonas, of No. 124 East Seventy-ninth street, who is in the feather manufacturing business at No. 200 East Fourteenth street. The manufactory was the scene of the shooting.

Mrs. Hanish had been employed as a domestic by Mrs. Jonas to care for her home and four children for more than a month, but a few days ago left of her own accord. At the time she demanded $5 which she claimed was due her, but she said Mrs. Jonas refused to give her the money, as she left before the month was ended.

Fired Pistol Through Her Muff. Mrs. Jonas went to her office about 8 o'clock this morning and as she entered the office was met by Mrs. Hanish. Mrs. Hanish had a muff about her right hand, and she approached Mrs. Jonas, raising her muff as she did so.

When she had nearly reached Mrs. Jonas Mrs. Hanish raised the muff on a level with Mrs. Jonas's body, and a moment later there was a shot fired from inside the muff. Mrs. Hanish was much excited, and the shot did not strike Mrs. Jonas.

Before another shot could be fired two employees, Fannie Shustek and Annie Walters, caught the mad woman and held her until Patrolman Muldoon, of the East Twenty-second street station, came along.

Revolver Found in Muff. He searched the muff and found a .22-caliber revolver inside, from which one shot had been fired.

Mrs. Hanish was arrested and taken to the Yorkville Court for arraignment before Magistrate Crane. When arraigned in court Stenographer Thilwitz said he recognized the woman as a muttering which couldn't be decoded. At that time also the shot did not hit its mark. Mrs. Hanish was discharged on the first charge by Magistrate Flannery. She was held to-day in $1,000 bail for trial.

The Shortest Cut from Producer to Consumer is distinctively our method. Everything we sell is placed with the housekeeper shorn of every cent of extra profit. The many middle profits under the old retail system remain in the pocketbooks of our customers. They approve of these profits, tell their friends and neighbors, and our business constantly expands. The continuous expansion increases our gains. The co-operative system pays us as well as every one of our customers. That is why we fight all the time to hold prices down. We present a very few sample offerings from our mammoth stock of groceries, food and household supplies, to illustrate how low our prices are.

Don't forget the DOUBLE Trading Stamps on MONDAY, TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY of this week.
